A flair for the affair

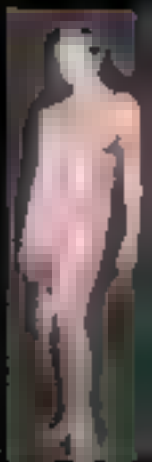

By [illegible] and [illegible]

Never has the affair been so common. In fact, it's the most common type of relationship in the United States, according to a new survey by the National Health and Medical Research Council. The survey found that 15 percent of men and 12 percent of women have had an affair at some point in their lives. The survey also found that 10 percent of men and 8 percent of women have had an affair in the last year.

Also, it's interesting 'cos the US channels have lots of really sexy stuff and it's all about the stuff we're missing. 'We're in the same room as we are you.' Well, a few standard things like football to reinforce the prices you'll have looking in on the phone. Looking really big on the screen. The same time they play when they put you on hold when calling a different channel. We had things like the US for the season. Money, money, money. I called a channel and the guy said, this is the way. 'SPARKS' ONLY. 'SPARKS' ONLY.

Abstract—A study was conducted to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the performance of a group of 10 young women. The program consisted of a combination of aerobic and anaerobic exercises. The results showed that the group improved significantly in all measures of performance, including speed, endurance, and strength. The program was well received by the participants and was found to be an effective means of improving physical fitness in young women.

Reality show teams, hot South Africans, and 8 other pop secrets that we want to spill this week

Age against the machine

Gino de la Paz

1 MTV's 'Pimp My Ride'

Just when all you players thought your '07 Santa was on its way to the scrap heap, along blazes rapper Xzibit and an out-of-the-box smash show called "Pimp My Ride." Tired hatchbacks not only turn into cricked-out sexy beasts, but become works of customized art as well. ("Pimp My Ride" airs on Thursdays at 10 p.m., Sundays at 9:30 p.m., Wednesdays at 1:30 p.m. on MTV.)

2 Charlize Theron as Aeon Flux

From an ugly murderer in "Monster" Hollywood's favorite South African home Charlize Theron is now set to play the sexy nile character in "Aeon Flux," an animated series that called MTV home in the nineties. Pioneering in Berlin was temporarily suspended, however, when Charlize suffered an unspecified injury while doing a wire-hanging action sequence. It's back to guns and tight costumes—not so tedious a high-promin, low-carb diet—once she recovers.

3 'Popular'—The Complete

First Season DVD

If the names Mary Cherry, Brooke McQueen and Josh Ford sound familiar, it's because they're characters from the socially minded WB high school dramedy "Popular." But Kennedy High's queen-bee-and-wannabes story arc lives on as the first season DVD set hits the screen on Sept. 21, 2004.

4 Nine Lives—Goldie

As a drum'n'bass icon, Goldie is a real original, taking the sped-up drum breaks from the British underground to international ears. As the subject of an unconventional autobiography, Goldie is a shapeshifting inspiration. Together with author Paul Gorman, he documents his journey to cult superstardom through photos, collages and beatified mood, that together make "Nine Lives" such a fascinating page-turner.

5 'Coupling'

Most people will automatically call "Coupling" the British "Friends," but that would be a cop out. BBC's "Coupling" dips more into "Seinfeld" territory with its intricately addictive portrayal of sex, weed and excess. If you're sick of American sitcoms, the show's point-of-view narratives might just be your cup of Earl Grey tea.

(Catch "Coupling" on Sat World every Saturday at 10 p.m.)

6 Metrosexual

With the inevitable demise of the so-called heterosexual comes a new and more self-deprecating version of the modern man. Coined by Men's Health columnist Joe Queenan, "metrosexual" refers to men who don't mind people thinking they're gay. Now if only there were a female equivalent.

9 Colin and Christie from 'The Amazing Race 5'

I thought that all the monsters in this show answered to the names Chada and Mitna, but boy was I wrong. Barry Watson look-alike Colin became the stuff of small-screen legend when he unleashed his psycho persona in Tanzania, refusing to pay the cab fare full fare just because their taxi was rolling on a "donut," or a flat tire, among other things. Nonetheless, he remains one half of my favorite team because a) Chip looks too much like Hootie, b) the models secretly worship the devil, and c) the other teams just suck.

7 'Everybody's Gotta Learn

Sometimes,' Beck

The Michel Gondry-directed feature "Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind" gave a new smoky twist to the words "déjà vu." Not surprisingly, the accompanying soundtrack had the same fuzzy power. As Joel Barish (Jim Carrey) drives around in his beat up Corolla, a familiar voice amps up the melancholy and captures the moment in all its desperate glory. The melodic murmur apparently belongs to Beck, who is back in the radar with his brilliant remake of an 1960 hit by Burt Bacharach. Download it now.

8 Video for The Streets' 'Dry Your Eyes'

First came Britpop. Now comes Britpop. In this music video masterpiece by Danish director Edward Wood, Mike Skinner, aka The Streets, finds that man's best friend is the only companion for a lonely lad who is always thinking about his broken relationship. We've all been there, right?

10 Busted vs. McFly

Busted echo Bill Haley with "Thunderbirds Are Go," while McFly channel Chuck Berry on "That Girl." At least in Britain, pop seems to have come full circle as these two bonafide bands hammer one hit with a charming irreverence and an eternal summer vibe.
